From NY State Archives

Promises to Keep: Preserving the Collections of 9/11

The office of the New York State Archives is pleased to announce a series of free workshops for families, survivors and responders to be held in the New York metropolitan area this coming year.

Since 9/11, representatives from various New York cultural institutions have worked to ensure the survival of critical documentation surrounding the 9/11 tragedy. As a result, organizations and individuals have assembled collections of documents and artifacts like oral histories, letters, diaries, posters, maps, government reports, case files, photographs, memorial quilts and architectural remnants. There are significant challenges in preserving some of these materials, especially those recorded in formats that are short-lived, like voicemail, text messages, and websites.

The State Archives has developed special workshops for families, survivors, responders, and recovery workers. Designed for the non-archivist, the workshops will provide clear and accessible guidelines for preserving family treasures and mementos. Stay tuned as they bring this workshop to New York City venues as a service to the 9/11 Community.

Workshop dates and times are to be announced. To join their mailing list or for more info, please contact Meridith Cherven-Holland, mcherven@mail.nysed.gov or Marie Culver, mculver@mail.nysed.gov at the State Archive office.

Please note – if you are interested in attending one of these workshops with other MA 9/11 Fund families, please contact Diane Nealon at the Fund.

Recaps on Recent Fund Events

Commemoration 2007

The Fund would like to extend its thanks to the countless family members, community partners and civic leaders who made this year's commemoration services possible. In particular, we want to acknowledge the committee of family members who met regularly and tirelessly to offer their input into the direction of the services, as well as the dedicated "Community of Care" members who volunteered their time to be a part of this important day.

The Fund circulated an online survey by email to family members, seeking their feedback on this year's commemoration. Family members who do not have access to email are welcome to contact Diane Nealon at the Fund with their comments and suggestions for next year's program.

This year's Commemoration services are available for viewing online via our website at <http://www.massfund.org/commemorationevents.html>. Copies of DVDs for the service are also available - please contact the Fund at info@massfund.org or 866-FUND-911 if you would like a copy.

Boston Medical Center Good Grief Program & MA 9/11 Fund Red Sox Game for Kids & Teens, September, 2007

The MA 9/11 Fund was pleased to partner with Boston Medical Center's Good Grief Program to host a great evening out for a group of kids and teens in late September - a reception at Jillian's followed by an exciting game between the Red Sox and the Minnesota Twins. The kids and teens saw the Sox clinch the AL East title, and the rest we now know is history!

Working Committee Forming – Scholarship America

From time to time we are asked by the Family Advisory Committee and others to pull together working groups in order to study issues related to various 9/11 benefits.

Currently, we are seeking family members experienced in dealing with Scholarship America, who are willing to join an informal committee for the purpose of addressing concerns regarding the program's administration. We are hoping this committee will be able to meet at least once and then communicate regularly by email. To join, please contact Diane Nealon at the Fund at 617-482-8156 or via email at diane.nealon@massfund.org.

Discounted 9/11 Book Available

At a family member's request, the Fund has obtained a few signed copies of Aftermath: World Trade Center Archive, by Joel Meyerowitz. This work is a collection of photographs taken of the destruction at the World Trade Center following the 9/11 attacks. Please be advised this is a very graphic work and may not be suitable for all family members. Copies are available through the Fund for $55 by contacting Diane Nealon at the Fund.
